WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The epidemic of Mediterranean submarine attacks without warning today is puzzling officials.

It is unknown whether Germany is repudiating the Lusitania case agreement or whether Austria is vigorously campaigning pending promising to cease torpedoing without warning.

The successful concealment of the attacking submarines' nationality has added difficulties to the situation.

The State Department is planning inquiries at the Austrian and German embassies and also among American representatives abroad. It is thus believed that the nationality of the submarines will be discovered.

Ambassador Von Bernstorff today returned from New York to resume the Lusitania negotiations.

He expects to be absent six weeks. It is understood that the foreign governments have approved his mission.

Brand Whitlock is returning to Brussels. He is physically improved after his recent illness.

At the dock Boy-Ed made a statement bitterly denouncing the newspapers, especially the Providence Journal. He said:

"While America supplies our enemies with all forms of munitions, I am denounced for chartering ships to provision German cruisers at the war's outbreak. It is my heartfelt hope that Germany and America always will maintain friendly relations."

WAR BREAKS OUT AGAIN BETWEEN STAR, CROWN JIT LINES

After a period of comparative peace between the Star and Crown stage lines, old-time enemies in this city, war appears again to have been declared.

The other night a Crown stage driver, Floyd Wright, drove up before the Star depot between Fourth and Fifth streets on Sycamore street, and, it is alleged by the Star people, endeavored to entice passengers away from the Star depot to ride in his own stage.

Wright violated the city ordinance by allowing his car to remain on the street for a longer period than five minutes. He was arrested, taken before City Recorder J. A. Willson, found guilty and fined $3.

War Flames Fanned

This occurrence seems only to have further fanned the flames of enmity between the two rival lines. Last night, it is stated, Wright again drove up to the Star depot.

Not only did Wright drive up to the Star headquarters, but he drove inside the depot for the purpose of delivering a package, according to A. D. Watson, one of the proprietors of the Crown line.

While Wright's machine was standing in the Star depot, it is alleged that a former Crown employee, a driver by the name of Edward A. Logsdan, of 809 North Ross street, now driving for the Star people, inserted a knife into one of the tires on Wright's car.

When the accusation was made against Logsdan that he had deliberately cut Wright's tire, rancor jumped to white heat.

Wright departed and came back in short order with several other Crown drivers, threatening to "clean" the Star drivers. As far as could be learned today, no "cleaning" was done. The Star people today emphatically deny that one of their men stuck his knife into the tire of the Crown stage while it was in the Star depot.

On the other hand, the Crown people seem to be absolutely as emphatic in their declaration that the Crown tire was cut by a Star stage man and that that man was Logsdan, the former Crown driver.

Arrest Planned
Watson, of the Crown line, this afternoon stated that he is planning to have Logsdan arrested.

The present difficulty is a development of a long-standing feud between the Crown and Star stage lines. While the city trustees were trying, some months ago, to arrive at some solution of the jitney problem, the two lines were given permission to conduct a stand on North Main street, between Fourth and Fifth, with the understanding that not more than two stages of either line should be on the stand at one time. The plan was tried out, attorneys and leaders of the two lines agreeing that the hatchet would be buried and that the drivers of both lines would do their utmost to live up to the plan as laid down by the City Council.

Jockeying Starts

It was not long, however, before jockeying commenced. In a short time there were not only two stages of each line on the Main street stand, but as many more as could crowd in. It developed into a case of whichever machines could get into line first stayed there until a load of passengers had been collected.

The plan failed. The city trustees argued that, inasmuch as the jitneys had been given their chance and the owners had failed to avail themselves of the chance, it behooved the city to try some other means of regulation. After considerable trial of various plans and suggestions, an ordinance was prepared which ruled the jitneys off the streets and into depots. This ordinance is in effect at the present time and seems to be working out fairly well. The Crown people secured a depot on North Main street, between Fifth and Sixth and the Star people one on Sycamore, between Fourth and Fifth.

Until the present difficulty arose between drivers of the two lines all seemed to be thoroughly harmonious, though several arrests have been made of drivers who violated sections of the new ordinance.

BIGGEST GROWTH ELECTRIC USE IS EXPECTED LOCALLY

Edison Man Forecasting Future of Company Says Prospects Here Best

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—After declaring that the business of the Southern California Edison Company outside of Los Angeles could be expected to increase to 61 per cent in the next eight years, S. M. Kennedy, general agent for the company, admitted that in the same territory the company business during the past eight had increased 500 per cent.

The prophecy as to the company's growth during the next eight years was made while Mr. Kennedy was under direct examination before the State Railroad Commission, which is taking testimony on which it will fix the compensation which the city should pay the Edison Company for its electric distributing system in

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

You'll Be Free

from the worries, expenses and litigation incidental to irrigation if you buy land in the Templeton-Paso Robles District.

Think of the advantages to be had in growing fruits and nuts under California conditions without irrigation; no installation or maintenance expense of a water system, no costly irrigating, all of which means a lower cost of production, finer flavored fruit with better keeping and shipping quality.

This locality has been producing a very superior quality of Apples, Pears, Prunes, Cherries, Grapes, Almonds and Walnuts for years without irrigation; but only in the last few years has any particular attention been given to the development of the fruit and nut industry. There are many reasons why this locality is coming to the front so rapidly, why it will in the near future be one of the richest, most famous districts in this state.

If you are a prospective land buyer you are not doing yourself justice unless you give the Templeton-Paso Robles District very serious consideration. Many comfortable little fortunes will be made there in the next few years—get into the game now. It's a pleasant place to reside, fine climate, beautiful surroundings, good social and market conditions. Ask me for Chamber of Commerce booklet and other information.

Los Angeles. The admission as to the company's experience in the past eight years was brought out when W. B. Mathews, special counsel for the city, began the cross-examination of the witness.

Kennedy said that his forecast of a 61 per cent increase in the company's business during the coming eight years was based on his calculation that the population of Southern California, outside of Los Angeles, would increase that much. He does not expect, he said, to be able to increase the per capita consumption of electricity materially.

The greatest growth is expected by the witness in the Santa Ana district. In the next eight years, he said, he expects it to increase its consumption of electric current from 12,000,000 kilowatt hours to 27,000,000 kilowatt hours.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—That the commerce of Los Angeles Harbor has become the bone of contention between big American and Japanese shipping concerns was made known yesterday when it was announced that W. The five new vessels will cost a total of $3,000,000.

Both of the competing lines will operate through the canal to New York.

LOST CHILD IS FOUND RIDING A BIG PLOW

Brea Progress: A lost child caused great excitement in Brea for several hours last Monday.

At about 11:30 a. m. little Alfred Rhone, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rhone, wandered from home and dropped from public view. When a search around the premises and in the neighborhood failed to locate the child, the mother became very much concerned and reported the disappearance. Neighbors joined in the search and as time passed the excitement became greater and searchers more numerous. By 2 o'clock nearly the whole town had turned out and automobile parties and people on foot were scouring the country hereabout most diligently. At 3:30 M. V. Robinson and P. C. Huddleston in an automobile located the youngster, riding a plow along side of P. Mon on the Bastanchury ranch, west of town.

The child had waded the shallow slough west of his home and had trudged along the course westward about half a mile when discovered by Mon. He was wet and muddy and fatigued, yet seemingly happy. Mon took the runaway over to the Berry ranch, but as no one knew him, the captor decided to keep him in charge, feeling that soon he would be called for. And along with his companion, busily engaged in plowing the soil, young Mr. Rhone was found and returned to his anxious parents.

RECEIVES BIDS INSTALLATION STREET LIGHTS

Citizen's Committee Has Figures, Which Were Taken Under Advisement

Yesterday afternoon the citizens' lighting committee, consisting of Col. S. H. Finley, F. P. Nickey and G. W. Minter, opened bids for the installation of ornamental lights on Fourth street from Ross to Mortimer and on Main street from Second to Sixth. Bids were received from six firms for the job complete, including the installation of the posts and lamps and the placing of the conduits.

The committee took the bids under advisement, and set no date upon which action will be taken. It is understood that the members of the committee desire to confer with other property owners along the two streets where the seventy lights are to be placed in order to secure from them an idea of their preferences. When a bid is accepted a contract for the installation will be drawn up and presented to the property owners for their signatures, and there is every reason to believe that every property owner will sign and avoid recourse to Vrooman Act proceedings.

Bids yesterday showed that the large copper jacketed posts will cost about ten cents per front foot more than the large cast iron posts. There are 6400 feet of frontage on which the payment for the installation will fall. Counting the street intersections there will be about 8500 feet of construction work. One of the copper-jacketed post bids figures out $1.36 per front foot.

The bids received were as follows: Charles Glass of Pasadena—For King Foundry cast posts, varying in weight, $7387, $7667, $7527 and $7527; copper jacket post, $8890.

F. E. Newberry Company, Los Angeles—Large copper jacket post, $8947.50; small copper, $8580; large steel shaft, $3310; small steel shaft, $8230; small cast iron, $7560.

Palmer Motor Shop, Santa Ana—Small cast iron, $7780; large, $8120.

Robertson & Packard, Santa Ana—Large copper, $8725; small, $3427.50; large steel, $8357; small steel, $8077.50.

Southern California Electric Company—Cast iron, $7971 Marbleite, $8200.

McEwan of Santa Monica—Cast iron, according to weight, $7487, $6490, $6626 and $6810; large copper, $8612; small copper, $7846.

In each bid the copper jacketed post is equipped with a Novalux light, such as has been on exhibition at the northeast corner of Fourth and Sycamore streets. Some of the cast iron and steel quotations are for that light and some for the light on exhibition at the Register corner.

GOOD ROADS

Some surprising reports of progress were made at the International Road Congress, held at Worcester, Mass., last week. Perhaps the most notable came from the Province of Quebec, Canada. Five years ago there were practically no macadam or gravelled roads in that province. Today it has 1299 miles macadam, 500 of gravelled roads, 10,000 new concrete bridges and culverts and 250 macadam plants pushing new work.

When you consider that Quebec is a country of scattered people, few cities of any size, and total population of only 2,000,000, this advance seems remarkable. How many of our states are doing as well, in proportion to population or wealth? Quebec will soon place its cattle, oats, hay and apples on the market at lower rates, and be a still more formidable competitor.

Every state in the Union should take note of these developments elsewhere, and ask if it is keeping up with the procession. The cost of living is needlessly high because of the cost of getting food to the markets. Manufactured products, loaded from factory to a railroad side track, have not risen much. It is the food products, drawn over poor roads in small loads, that cost high.

Every farm district needs a good hard road to serve the industrial community efficiently. With such highways, big motor trucks will circle about the back districts, and pick up their great loads at a small cost.

It is interesting to note that Quebec got its new roads by treating the road question as a state problem. It did not attempt to make the local community pay the whole cost. The provincial government got busy and borrowed $15,000,000.

In the United States, the consumer in towns and cities will get quite as much benefit from low transportation costs as the farmer. He should be willing to take his share in liberal state taxes for road improvement.

THE REIGN OF "STANDPATISM"

(Wm. Allen White, in California Independent)

If ever in the history of creation "standpatism" was the mental condition of the world, it is today. The earth is paralyzed with terror. Fear comes into every home; fear sits at every board. Fear chokes generous impulses; it weakens altruistic emotions. Fear puts a finger on its lips at every change. In business, in religion, in politics, in economics, "standpatism" is dominant. It has cast a terrible spell of doubt upon the world.

It will last until in God's mercy the minds and morals of men have grown upward and forward to the extent to which man's machines have grown. But so long as war threatens, so long as it is possible to turn to ends of destruction the great machines man has made, so long will fear shackle the earth, and "standpatism" reign.

With peace will come progress.

When Women Choose Their Mates

I heard a woman say the other day, "Why shouldn't women ask men to marry them?" I consider I have just as much right to ask for my happiness as a man has to ask for his. It's a great responsibility for any man to ask a girl to leave a good home, give up all the luxuries she is surrounded with, and throw in her life with his—to take him literally for "better or for worse." Many a man hesitates to do this, yet if the girl shares the responsibility, by taking the initiative, why not?

I think there is something in that. When the time comes that women can do a little of the choosing, it will be interesting to see what will be the characteristics, the nature of the men, the girls will seek. It will surely change many things. Men will find there are not as many girls wanting to marry them as they think there are today.

As the day has passed when brawn and muscle were the standard of value in a man, so, too, when a girl has the chance to look for her mate, she will look for more than sex attraction. A girl wants more than just a good-looking man, and her ideals go beyond a big man who can protect her. When the time comes that a woman can seek her companion for life, there will be many attributes required in man that are lacking today.

They talk about the spoiled American woman. Why, the American woman has been spoiling the American men so that they think every woman they meet wants to marry them. Some of them are sadly in need of a lesson. It hardly seems fair that a girl must wait until some man sees her and says, "That is the girl I want to marry," while the girl must select from anything that drifts her way.

She can only choose from the best that is offered her in the male line. Often she has a small selection to choose from. Under present conditions it is as if she were limited in her shopping to a small shop instead of being able to search in a big department store where she could find exactly the kind and quality of goods she wanted.

It is not so with the man. He has the whole world to choose from, and seeks until he finds. He has all the shops in the world in which to hunt for the exact match of the ideal sample that he has in his mind.

The woman on the contrary must often put up with what she does not want—color but not quality. But the day is coming when she, too, can take her ideals ample and look for what she wants and not be limited to any custom that decrees that a woman must show no preference nor wish for a man until the man has first proved his interest or love for her.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

By the Editor

When I was a little boy it was "Crismas" until New Years—no Christmas Day or Christmas Eve, but just "Crismas." Like the little girl who was inordinately fond of ice cream, and wished for a neck as long as an ostrich's, that the ice cream might stay in the tasting zone a long time, so we prolonged to the uttermost the joys of Christmas.

But while I still enjoy Christmas, for obvious reasons I am not keen about having it last week. For one thing, I don't think my digestive powers would hold out, and—well, there are other reasons—but let that pass.

But take Christmas cards—there's no reason at all why we shouldn't prolong the Christmas card orgy for several days at least. Christmas cards begin to arrive several days before Christmas and they keep coming at least until New Year's.

And what an infinite variety of rhyme and reason, of shape, size and decoration they present!

Some Christmas cards are original, but most of them are what the trade calls "stock" cards.

Perhaps many who read this have received a little card—indeed a "tiny card," for that is its trade name, and it is in fact a tiny card—inscribed:

"It's an old, old wish,
On a tiny little card;
It's only Merry Christmas,
But I wish it awful hard."

And many who did receive it will be surprised to learn that the author of that "tiny little card," Robert H. Lord, received $400 for writing it, $20 per word, making him the highest paid author in the world.

But it is his publisher who is making the big money out of the "tiny card." Already over a million of them have been sold, for which the public has paid over $50,000.

Of course some Christmas cards are original. Among several of this kind which I received this year were two that are very good indeed—though very unlike each other.

One came from Will A. Smith, a printer friend at Whittier. It is decorated with a holly wreath and inscribed:

"The days are short at Christmas time,
So am I—by golly!"

That's why I only send this card
With its little wreath of holly."

The other came from Judge W. H. Thomas of the Orange County Superior Court. It is in the form of a little four-leaf folder. On the title page is a decoration of holly and Christmas bells, and the words, "Merry Christmas." On the inside of this page is a photograph of Judge Thomas talking into a telephone. The next two pages contain this personal greeting:

"This is Thomas talking. You will pardon me for calling you so early, won't you? Oh, thank you, so early, At this blessed Christmas time, charged as it is with the Gospel of Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men, I just wanted to tell you that it is my sincere desire that for the past you may have only golden memories, for the present a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and for the future all that you may desire, and that God will approve, in personal, domestic, business, political and spiritual happiness.

In sending you this greeting I am only voicing what my heart speaks many times. In wishing you much happiness I am only wishing for you on Christmas Day that which I wish for you every day. Heaven save us from that dormant friendship which comes to life but once a year. Let us keep ever alive an interest in our friends even if its outward utterance comes only at Christmas time. Believe me this Christmas Wish for your happiness is but my daily wish. May every day be as bright as Christmas Day and may all the days of the new year be of sunshine and joy.

Sincerely your friend,
W. H. THOMAS.

The following pages contain quotations of verse:

"More sweetly came the story,
In chorus clear and strong,
The song so full of glory,
From Heaven's radiant throng;
O, listen, humble shepherds
Look up and do not fear;
To you is born a Savior,
The Prince of Peace is here."

IN A FRIENDLY SORT O' WAY

When a man ain't got a cent, and he's feelin' kind o' blue,
And the clouds hang dark and heavy,
An' won't let the sunshine through,
It's a great thing, O, my brethren, for a feller just to lay
His hand upon your shoulder in a friendly sort o' way.

It makes a man feel curious, it makes the tear drops start,
An' you sort o' feel a flutter in the region of the heart;
You then look up and meet his eyes; you don't know what to say
When his hand is on your shoulder in a friendly sort o' way.

Oh, the world's a curious compound, with its honey and its gall,
With its care and bitter crosses, but a good world, after all.
An' a good God must have made it—leastwise, that is what I say.
When a hand is on my shoulder in a friendly sort o' way.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

"In men, whom men condemn as ill,
I find so much of goodness still.
In men, whom men pronounce divine,
I find so much of stain and blot,
I hesitate to draw the line,
Where God has not."

We received one card that was quite a joke—though of course it was unintentional. It came from Pasadena friends. They were evidently sending out cards to friends in Ohio and Massachusetts, and by mistake sent us a card decorated with roses and inscribed:

"From the Land of the Sun
Glad greetings I send
To you in the Land of the Snow;
May peace and contentment
And joy without end
Be with you wherever you go."

We responded by sending these friends a copy of Whittier's "Snow-bound."

I like Christmas greetings. I like them better than presents either to give or receive—except, of course, where there is need for substantial gifts.

In this region, warmed by a grateful sun, ever clothed in verdure, and fragrant with bloom, the old tradition of snows and the Yule-log are not in keeping, but here humanity responds as fully to the blandishments of the day and all its legends and impulses. May the Christmas that has opened the heart to love and to pity, touching charity to worthy deeds, so leave its impress that the mind shall be stirred until it seems to glimpse the glory of the Star that shone above the plains and catch the melody of angelic song; And in phrasing the wish, nothing could be better than to say with Tiny Tim "God bless us every one."

"LAGUNA LIFE"

"Laguna Life" is the alliterative and altogether appropriate and significant name of Laguna Beach's miniature newspaper, and stranger things have happened than that this tiny paper should develop into something like Bill Nye's Boomerang or the Arizona Kicker. Not that Laguna Life flies back and knocks itself galley-west and crooked; although it does "boom" anything. And not that it is a Kicker. But it is humorous and literary and so forth and so on.

Listen to the Christmas number: While there is dearth Of peace on earth,
This present Yule time season;
"Life" hopes that each May get in reach Of all he wants—in reason.

We've read of war,
From near and far,
In minion and in leaders;
No word of strife
In this weeks "Life"—
A MERRY CHRISTMAS—READERS.

—Frank Hanson.

LIBELS

(By Joe Skidmore)
While Webster says "congregate and collect have technically the same meaning, any minister will tell you there is a vast difference between a congregation and a collection."

I just had a fine political job in a pickle factory. "No, Percival, it is not picking the warts off
It is fixing Bryan (Brine) for 1916."

The editor almost treated today as we were walking by Hofe's ice cream resort, the red what are we going to have—"rain or wind."
There hez bin no complaint about the nocturnal vocal efforts of various feline quadrupeds since the village orchestra hez been practicing—Some authorities who hev listened say it closely resembles the wailing of lost souls, while others maintain that it is the sequel of the abominable as she calls to her mate.

And this on the Editorial page:
Christmas—! What does it mean?
Webster says it is the twenty fifth of December on which day the church celebrates, by a special service, the birth of Christ.

The church committee finds it the time in which it can pose in front of the green and glittering background of the tree, and admire its handiwork.

The members of the congregation who are not on the committee take keen satisfaction at the time in nudging one another and expressing how the place should have been decorated. The children know the hour of exercises to be filled with indescribable terrors and a feeling of awful suspense concerning what is on the tree for them.

Eat a Square Meal and Not Fear Indigestion

There are hundreds of people in Santa Ana who were not the least bit surprised when they read in the Register that Rowley Drug Co. was selling Mi-na on a guarantee to refund the money in case it did not relieve. This remarkable dyspepsia remedy will relieve the worst case of indigestion, headache, dizziness, or the general played-out condition that afflicts every one suffering with stomach trouble. Mi-na does not simply relieve, it aims to cure.

Rowley Drug Co. can tell you of many well known people in this city who this remedy has restored to health, often after they have tried many other methods of treatment with little or no benefit. No other dyspepsia remedy has made so large a percentage of cures as Mi-na. It is so large that Rowley Drug Co. stands ready to refund the price to any customer whom it does not help.

The best kind of advertising is the praise of a pleased customer, and there are hundreds in Santa Ana today praising Mi-na because it does what it is advertised to do. A few months ago they could eat nothing without wondering what the result would be. Since using Mi-na, they eat what they want and when they want with no fear of suffering. This medicine comes in the form of a small tablet and is very pleasant to take. It speedily and permanently relieves almost all forms of stomach trouble and is the only one sold under a positive guarantee without any restriction, to refund the money if it does not relieve. This is a good time to get well and you ought to take advantage of Rowley Drug Co. offer.—Advertisement.

CHRISTMAS AT DELHI

Annual Festival Held In Auditorium of New Grammar School

About 130 people were present at the Annual Christmas Festival held in the auditorium of the new grammar school at Delhi on Thursday evening. They thoroughly enjoyed a program arranged by Miss Edith Watkins and consisting of nine numbers, all of which were admirably carried out by members of the Sunday school. The musical part of the program consisted of suitable Christmas songs and were sung at the opening of the proceedings and at intervals throughout the evening.

The first number on the program was a representation of the Nativity, entitled "The First Christmas Eve." In this the characters were well sustained. The Oriental costumes of the Wise Men and the simple dress and crooks of the Shepherds, together with the background of well arranged greenery added greatly to the reality of the scene. Jimmie Barker played with his recitation of "Just Suppose." He made the audience thoroughly understand what a terrible thing it would be if Santa ever did happen to make the mistake of giving to the boys presents he intended for girls. Ardene Clarke, a little three-year-old girl, wished everybody "A Happy Xmas Day." "The Message of the Stars" was promptly delivered by two boys and two girls costumed to represent India, China, Persia and Japan. Five little girls of the primary class recited "Five Little Stars." One of them, Agnes Walker, then sang "The Gingerbread Boy," and was followed by three little tots of the same class who appeared in their night gowns. They carried their stockings in their hands and crept in on tiptoe so as not to scare Santa Claus, who they hoped would fill their stockings with good things. They were on the program as "The Silent Brigade." "The Model Xmas Tree" was the next item. Mrs. A. R. Marshall had the pleasure of receiving gifts for this special tree from eight girls and boys, who described their presents as they handed them over to her. The last item on the program was very beautiful. Six young ladies of Mrs. Franklin's class, dressed in white with varicolored sashes, and carrying the flags of the countries they represented, stood in a semi-circle on the platform and showed by Scripture quotations how the Old Testament Prophecies regarding a World-Savior received their fulfillment in the Birth of Christ. They concluded their number with a very sweet rendering of the beautiful song, "Holy Night." This ended the program.

The superintendent, Mr. W. B. Lockett, who had conducted the whole proceedings, now commenced to strip the pretty Christmas tree. The room was quickly alive with very happy children busy examining the pretty toys and presents handed out to them. Boxes of candy and big seedless oranges the latter supplied by Mr. W. B. Lockett, were then distributed and the meeting was brought to a close by prayer offered by the Rev. Otto E. Russell of the First Baptist Church of Santa Ana.

YOUNG MAN SURPRISED

Keith Davis Visited by Friends To Celebrate His Eighteenth Birthday

Keith Davis, one of the popular students at the Polytechnic High School, was given a very delightful surprise last evening by a party of his friends, the occasion being the celebration of his eighteenth birthday. Russell Adkinson, whose natal day comes on the same date, was also honored in company with Mr. Davis.

Vivid poinsettias made an effective centerpiece for the dining table, where a delicious three-course supper was served the young men. A feature of the table appointments was a huge and beautifully decorated cake with its twinkling candles, which were blown out with good luck wishes. The candles numbered enough for the two honored young gentlemen.

A lovely Christmas tree held gifts for all the guests and conversation and games of ruck pleasantly passed the remainder of the evening, together with music and singing.

Besides the surprised young man, those who participated in the pleasant affair were: Russell Adkinson, Donald Stevenson, Charles McClain, Basil Smith, Ralph Beals, Fred Forgy, Donald Anderson, James Anderson, Klyn Wolford, David Anderson, John Wehrly, Raymond Adkinson, Marvin Greathouse, Prof. R. B. Kelly, Maxwell Jayne.

Masons To Long Beach
Orange Royal Arch Chapter, No. 73, will put on the Royal Arch degree at Long Beach this evening, the candidates being a father and two sons. About sixty Masons will leave the Temple at 6 p. m. this evening.

All the Grand Officers of the state will be present at the impressive ceremonies.

Beta Sigma Class Party

Holly and mistletoe made appropriate decorations and there was a tree holding gifts for all. Light refreshments were served and a delightful evening enjoyed.

'THE JUNIOR COLLEGE'

Subject of Excellent Monday Club Paper by Prof. W. A. Hall

Prof. W. A. Hall of the high school faculty gave a very illuminating paper at the Monday Club meeting last evening on the subject of "The Junior College and Its Place in the Educational System." The Junior College is a new thing, its purpose being to add to the high school curriculum two years of college work.

Three different plans are being tried out in different localities. (1) The plan of keeping the Junior College separate from the high school in every way, in building, faculty, equipment, etc., making it as near as possible like a real college. This is the plan in vogue in Los Angeles. (2) That of adding two more years to the high school curriculum, practically making it a six years' course, and making use of the same building, equipment and student body. This is the Fresno plan. The third plan is a combination of these two.

There are two Junior Colleges in Orange County, one at Fullerton and the other at Santa Ana. Both of these come under the third plan. The first to be established in this county was the one at Fullerton, in 1913. In the state as a whole there are now thirteen Junior Colleges.

The reasons advanced for the organization of such a college were clearly set forth by Prof. Hall. There was first the lessened cost to the student. He remains at home, which is a benefit both from the standpoint of the student and of the community. There is further a pedagogical benefit in that the student passes more gradually from the recitation type of school to the lecture type represented by the college and university. Freshmen and sophomores are not ready for original research. By remaining in the Junior College the transition is made more gradual.

The features most open to discussion are the limits of the Junior College. Are high school teachers capable of measuring up to standards of college and university work? Is it possible to give to the student in the Junior College the same advantages of expert instruction as in a college where the teachers are highly trained specialists? Then there is the problem of financing the Junior College. Under the state law the regular tax levy cannot be used for this purpose, and the only way of providing the necessary funds is by special tax voted by the local district, or by endowment. Another objection to be urged is that it is not possible to provide the large costly library and laboratory equipment that the university provides. Then there is the larger college and university life and atmosphere, the new interests and the broadening influences, which the student misses if he remains at home.

In summing up, Prof. Hall set forth very clearly the pros and cons of the Junior College. He expressed the belief that the institution had a place in our educational system in providing additional educational advantages to a large number of students who could not afford to go to college or university, but he stated as his opinion that on the whole it is better for the student who can afford to do so to take the full four-year college or university course.

1915 REVIEW OF THE WAR

BY J. W. T. MASON (Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Germany has won the overland pathway to her place in the sun, as the close of the fighting of 1915 merges into the cold winter of the European war. But the seas still remain shut to the Teutons and economic distress and food scarcity are exerting a more pronounced pressure for peace in the Central empires than among the other belligerent nations.

The primary cause of the war has been lost this year to both of the original participants. The conflict began over the irreconcilable Balkan differences of Russia and Austro-Hungary. Each power wanted to be supreme in Southeastern Europe. The end of the fighting in 1915 finds Russia held in check beyond the Balkan border, while Austro-Hungary is playing a minor military part in Serbia under the direction of Marshal Von Mackensen and the German general staff. German influences are now dominant in the Balkans. The Kaiser has wrested the first prize of the war from the Slavs themselves, and from his own southern ally as well.

Bulgaria's entrance into the conflict on the side of the Teutons has been the year's most important development. The military consequences which have followed Bulgaria's action, have given to the Germans a clear road from Berlin to Bagdad. The Mesopotamian metropolis has long been marked by German statesmen to become the Berlin of the Middle East and the center of Germany's place in the sun. The year's events having opened for Germany the near entrance into Bagdad, the Kaiser must continue to fight to the point of exhaustion for permanent possession of this precious right of way. The British fleet can prevent Germany from expanding overseas, but it cannot block the road to the new empire in the east. This is the dominant reason for Germany's interest in Bagdad.

An Anglo-Indian expedition, after twelve months' toil northward through Mesopotamia from the Persian gulf, is now trying to enter Bagdad by the front door. But the Turks under German leadership have thrust the invaders ninety miles to the south of Bagdad, and the city at the close of the year remains safe for the Teutons. Nevertheless, during the year's fighting, the British have captured the Garden of Eden and other territory between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers greatly desired by Germany. If the German dream of a Teutonic Empire in the Middle East is to come true, the district between Bagdad and the Garden of Eden, 250 miles to the south, must either be won by a new military offensive, or purchased in the peace conference after the war.

The military developments of the year make it certain that the Russian Bear will not be able to take his drink of warm water at the Persian Gulf; and little less than a miracle must now happen to give the Czar Constantinople for an outlet to the unfrozen seas. The British effort to enter Constantinople by way of the Gallipoli Peninsula has failed during the year, and Great Britain is now reluctant to undertake a second costly expedition in Southeastern Europe for Russia's sake. The ease with which the Teutons and Bulgarians have been able to overrun Serbia apparently has been due to Great Britain's disinclination to risk wasting her strength in a major Balkan offensive. The odds all favor the Teutonic allies in the Balkans because of their unimpeded lines of communication.

British interest in the Balkan campaign is primarily due to its bearing on the security of Egypt. Lord Kitchener's visit to the Levant during the latter part of the year and his quick return, seem to have created a belief in London that Egypt is not in any immediate jeopardy. The British now apparently have concluded that Egypt can be better defended along the Suez Canal than in the Balkans. The advantage of communications, which the Germans possess in the Balkans, would pass to the British if the Teutons and Turks were to attempt an offensive by crossing the desert to the east of Suez.

The Russians, however, are urgently pressing Great Britain to pursue the Balkan campaign. Otherwise, the Czar will probably be the war's principal loser. His own troops, waiting, as the year ends, to invade Bulgaria by way of Roumania, can hardly prove equal to the task, unassisted. The Teutons, Bulgarians and Turks have certainly 700,000 men available for Balkan operations and this force might possibly be increased to a million. Unquestionably differences of opinion have arisen among the allies during the year because of divergent Balkan military policies. The conflicting interests have not been reconciled in detail as the year ends. Russia's defeat on her own soil by the combined Austro-Hungarian and German offensives this summer was not sufficiently decisive to cause the Czar to sue for a separate peace. The Grand Duke Nicholas saved the greater part of his armies, and although he was removed from his command because of the loss of Galicia and the Vistula defenses, he prevented the Kaiser from compelling the Czar to surrender. The Russian military failure was followed by the suppression of the Duma, the popular legislative body, and the Council of the Empire, the bureaucratic legislative house. The Czar is now governing by fiat as a complete autocrat, relying neither on the people themselves nor on the bureaucracy.

The year has seen no change of importance along the western battlefield. The French in Champagne, and the French and British in Artois attempted to develop a simultaneous major offensive during the last week in September, but without success. The Germans lost a few miles of trenches, but they were able to check the enemy before the drives threatened to compel a general retirement toward the German frontier. The result of the costly experiment showed that the Teutonic trenches are not impregnable, but also revealed the fact that the Anglo-French general staffs have not solved the problem of following up one successful attack by another in the face of German artillery. Italy's entrance into the war this year has had disappointing results for Great Britain, Russia and France. The Italians, after seven months' fighting have not gained as much territory as Austria offered to cede last spring in exchange for Italy's benevolent neutrality. The principal factor working against Italian success has been the superiority which trench warfare gives to an army on the defensive. The Roman government is now facing serious though subdued criticism at home. As the year ends, there are reports that pressure is being exerted in favor of the return to power of the veteran pro-German ex-premier, Giolitti. Italy has signed an agreement with the other members of the Quadruple Entente not to make a separate peace, but if Signor Giolitti were to be made Prime Minister, he would undoubtedly use his influence for peace at the earliest moment.

The financial situation among all the belligerents has steadily grown more and more serious as the expenses of the conflict during the year have ceaselessly mounted. The total daily cost of the war is now about $5,000,000, two-thirds of which is being paid by the Quadruple Entente, and one-third by Germany and her allies. The British, who have been most lavish in their payments, have also been the most sincere in facing the critical monetary problems of the war. Great Britain alone among the belligerents has begun to shoulder the financial burden of the conflict by accepting large war taxes. Elsewhere the war is prolonged almost exclusively on borrowed money. It is probable that the exhaustion of golden bullets, and the accompanying danger of economic disaster will be the principal determining factors in bringing the war to an end.

The food situation in Germany and Austro-Hungary has become more serious this year than last, but has not grown sufficiently hazardous to compel the Teutons to accept peace. It is a contributing cause, nevertheless, to the persistent desire for peace which is more apparent in Germany as the year closes than anywhere else. A nation which will consent to live on half rations indefinitely, if it is fighting a defensive war, may refuse a long curtailment of food if the government has offensive purposes in view. As this year's fighting drew to an end, Dr. von Bethmann-Holweg, the German chancellor, declared in the Reichstag that Germany was fighting a defensive war to prevent herself being crushed by the allies. But, last August, Dr. Helfferich, the German minister of finance, announced, also in the Reichstag, that Germany's war expenses would be paid by an indemnity collected from the enemy. The year is closing with one disavowal from Berlin of Dr. Helfferich's intimation of conquest.

PARIS, Dec. 28.—Five significant events punctured the year just drawing to a close as seen from the French point of view: The battle of Champagne, the Balkan muddle, the change of governments, the creation of an Inter-Ally War Council and the nomination of General Joffre as Commander-in-Chief of all the French armies, whatever the theater of operations.

On the whole France regards the proper time, there is not the slightest doubt that Greece would have led the dance, that Bulgaria and Roumania would today be fighting on the Allies' side and that the multi-colored flags of Germany's opponents would today be floating the minarets of Constantinople.

The resignation of Theophile Delcasse considered one of the greatest of Frenchmen from the office of Minister to Foreign Affairs, was due uniquely to the Balkan developments. Some say he opposed the sending of troops to Salonica; others declare he long ago advocated Big Stick methods in the Near East and that because his diplomacy there was not strongly enough backed up, King Ferdinand joined hands with the Kaiser instead of with the Allies. Take your choice. Whatever his reasons for resigning, his departure was the occasion of a complete reorganization of the Government, Premier Rene Viviani resigning to make way for M. Aristide Briand. The presence of M. Briand as Prime Minister is significant. He is known as a man of action, of initiative and strong measure.

The nomination of General Joffre as Supreme Generalissimo of all the French troops and planning campaigns; Second, the French hope that the English will take the hint and agree to a full and complete co-ordination of all available forces. Competent authorities agree that German successes have been the result of a central control of effectiveness, permitting rapid decisions quickly put into effect, whereas the Allies have not acted properly in concert and when at last, after long delays they did get together, the measures agreed upon were slowly put into operation. The Inter-Ally War Council, composed of men who have the power to act, as it is said, Joffre will have from now on, ought to show results during the coming year.

Summed up, France's last year has been largely one of preparation. She hopes the coming year will be one of execution. People here call the new cabinet, the Cabinet of Victory just as they call the new French loan of about 20 billion francs, the Loan of Victory.

The Frenchman hopes for peace during 1916. He considers the American peace talk the greatest puzzle of the year because peace now could mean but one thing: Defeat for the Allies.

The elevation of Joffre to his new position is an official commendation of his war policy, summed up by the experts as wearing the enemy down by "attrition," which Joffre calls "nibbling." Naturally this policy will be in force so long as Joffre is in the saddle. France made three heavy drives at the Germans during 1915, in March, May and September, but these drives were all failures, I am told, to test the strength of the German line. The French soldier will tell you that French Man-power will outlast German man-power, thanks to Joffre's nibbling, that sooner or later the German wall of steel will prove to be imitation; and, following a feeler the real drive will pour through the hole thus made and end the row.

A Berlin interview quotes General von Kluck as forecasting a drive towards Paris next spring. A French general told me that he hoped von Kluck was right as in that case the slaughter of Germans would be on such a vast scale that the whole world would gasp, used as it is to bath in blood. Those who have inspected the some 50-mile widow of American barbed wire between Paris and the front, while not counting that another attempt is possible, or even probable, fail to see how it can succeed.

Here then, is the forecast for 1916. Comparative quiet along the Western front until Spring; then general offensives, both French and German; operations probable throughout the summer with a decision of some sort in the Fall.

This is a guess, but it is as good as any, whether from a general or a private. Of all one thing can be certain: All the Expert dope is wrong.

LOS ANGELES PRODUCE MARKET
Vegetable prices remained unaltered yesterday with the exception of lettuce which declined to 30 cents a dozen and $1.25 a crate. Lettuce has been fairly plentiful of late and there has been a plethora of poor stuff on hand. Cabbage and cauliflower are slightly easier and quotations are due to be scaled down. Tomatoes continue firm at 90 cents to $1.00 a lug and wholesalers state that orders from outside points are just as heavy as ever. This is about the poorest time of the year for tomatoes, most of the stock now coming into the city being soft and colorless.

IN THE JUSTICE COURT

DID NOT PROVE
INTOXICATION
OF DRIVERReckless Driving Limit of Offense of Which Watts May Be Guilty Here

So far as prosecution here is concerned, it has not been proven that E. J. Watts, ranch manager for Rev. Alfred Qutu of San Juan Capistrano, was intoxicated when he drove an automobile from Oceanside to Irvine, on a ride described as wild and reckless.

Watts has been arrested at Oceanside for responsibility for the wrecking of a small automobile in which three persons were slightly injured. He was arrested at Irvine by Motorcycle Officer Davenport and Deputy Sheriff Cravath on a telephone message from Oceanside. Before reaching Irvine he bumped two jitneys, one driven by Carl Edgar of El Toro. Edgar had the man arrested for reckless driving.

Yesterday the evidence of the prosecution was put on, and the case was then continued to January 14, on Watts' request, as Watts was unable to get witnesses here yesterday. Watts is represented by Attorney H. C. Head. Several witnesses were examined yesterday. Their testimony, however, was to the effect that the automobile Watts was driving was going at a high rate of speed, and that it bumped two jitneys. There was no evidence to show that Watts was intoxicated.

Got 100 Days Each

Miguel Rivera and Jose Rodriguez were sentenced to 100 days each for battery upon Policeman Carter, whom they fought in an attempt to escape after they had been arrested for disturbing the peace.

Held to Answer

J. W. Kinkade, formerly of Villa Park, was ordered held to answer on a charge of forgery. He is accused of signing the name of J. B. Handy of Villa Park, for whom he worked, to a $25 check, passed at a store at Olive.

For Disturbance

R. Merkle paid a fine of $5 on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Held to Answer

Pedro Portillo, Jose Perez and Joe Lasso, all of San Juan Capistrano, have been ordered held to answer for trial in the superior court, each on two charges of selling liquor in violation of the prohibition law. Since San Juan Capistrano is in the Fifth Supervisorial District, which is non-liquor territory under the Wylie local option law, the cases are to be tried in the superior court as high misdemeanors instead of in the justice court as misdemeanors.

RENEWING OLD ORANGE TREES
BY OPENING THEM TO SUNLIGHT

(Chas. R. Paine, in Redlands Facts)

Prof. Skinner's very interesting and important paper on management of soils tempts me to relate the details and results of an experiment on a small acreage, of renewing old and unthrifty orange trees by treating only the trees themselves, and not at all the soil, except in the usual manner, and applying no fertilizer except as stated.

The reader must not infer, however, that I do not believe in generous soil treatment, nor that Prof. Skinner does not believe in putting trees in condition to take advantage of a well-treated soil.

The soil on which my experiment with trees was made has been occupied by the same orange trees that are there now, and have been for at least thirty-five years.

They were rarely fertilized and not at all enriched for several years preceding the experiment, more attention being given to larger orchards.

It is but a small plot, consisting of eight rows, with navels at one end and seedlings, with navels, at the other. The seedlings looked so feeble that I applied one-half a carload of sheep manure, but to the navel plot I applied nothing whatever.

The terminals of the branches abounded in small yellow leaves, and dead and feeble branches and twigs characterized the limbs generally. All in all they were in sorry plight, and if I succeeded in my experiment, the change would be marked.

In the spring or early summer of 1914, I treated all these trees to a severe cutting out of the debilitated limbs—the saw was the chief instrument used—aiming chiefly to make the tops open to the trunk of the tree in each cutting, leaving no stubs.

Few limbs with their branches were taken out to accomplish my object. In the seedling trees many dead twigs remain protruding among the fruit, attesting that only one style of cutting was done, with only one object in view.

I expected to see, as a result of the work, a renewal of the growth of the trees; a new growth taking the place of the old, among the branches and the interior of the tree, especially, to be filled with new and vigorous green foliage; whether fruitful or not was not material, for I knew that reliance for general renewal was in the interior of the tree, upon which I had planned, by my cutting that direct sunlight would fall, and in whose larger substance unusual plant food abounded.

The reader will remember how, after the great frost of a few years ago, there occurred defoliation of many trees, which was followed by short stemmed growths along the large limbs of the trees and upon the main trunk, a growth that would not have occurred when that part of the tree was shut off from direct sunlight.

It is botanically true that it is only the green parts of plants that are capable of absorbing carbon dioxide and exhaling oxygen, and it is only in these green parts that a formation of organic substance can take place; that is, it is only by means of green leaves that plants can grow; direct sunlight is the potent influence in the formation and growth of green leaves, and the larger part of the branches is the most important storehouse of plant food; the terminals in old trees are already exhausted, as shown by their small and yellowish leaves.

If a tree is to be thrifty again in its age it must either be beheaded, or by removal of such obstructing limbs as I have described, sunlight must be invited to exert its direct influence upon the interior of the tree as affording the best food supply.

Now as a result of the work in the trees of that orchard, less than two years ago, and done in accordance with the laws of life and growth, I have my reward and it is great.

It is only by seeing the trees, unusually well loaded with fruit, clothed almost wholly in green but not entirely, and the interior filled with new green foliage, that one can appreciate the transformation.

HUNTINGTON BEACH GROWER
PRODUCES PROLIFIC LIMA

Andrew J. Young, residing three miles north of Huntington Beach and one of the well-known growers of this prosperous section, has produced what he and others who are familiar with his product, believe will be the most valuable lima bean on the market.

The new bean, which has been sold to a Los Angeles seed house, will be known as "Young's Prolific Wonder," and, as the name implies, the new bean will, in the estimation of Mr. Young, be the most prolific of its kind ever grown. Notwithstanding the fact that the crop in this section this year was somewhat under the average, the new bean yielded about 40 sacks per acre, and also requires less attention than the ordinary field bean.

The bean grows on a bush somewhat similar to that of the pepper, there being no runners. Mr. Young is under contract to grow ten acres of his "Prolific Wonder" next year for seed for the big seed concern that purchased all the "Wonders" extant a few weeks ago.

Mr. Young is one of the scientific farmers of Southern California, and is continually experimenting with plant life on his farm. He is one of the best known potato growers in California and has produced some new varieties and is now working on another new one.

Mr. and Mrs. Young have resided in this vicinity for the past twenty-six years, and on their present ranch twenty-one years last October. The farm consists of sixty acres, fifteen of which are the famous peatland—as productive as any on this or any other globe—Huntington Beach News.

ANN ARBOR GIRL
LOSES PAL IN WAR

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—There is a senior girl in the University of Michigan who feels that she has lost a long-time friend, despite the fact that she never saw the young man in question.

In her junior year in the high school of her home town, the teacher of German started the class writing to students of English in Germany. The letters were sent to the teacher of English in the German school, an acquaintance of the American teacher, and she distributed them among her pupils.

A young German boy fell to the lot of this girl and the correspondence was kept up until the outbreak of the war. Then the young man wrote her that he was going to the front and that letters would probably be few. Afterward she heard from him once or twice and then—silence.

The other day she received a letter from the young man's father. His son had been killed in action, "somewhere in France."
